Attorney General Griffin Calls for Termination of UALR Law School Professor

Griffin: 'The First Amendment protects your right to say what you want. It does not, however, guarantee you the job you want, regardless of what you say.

The law school should terminate her immediately'

LITTLE ROCK – Attorney General Tim Griffin today issued the following statement regarding a professor at the UA Little Rock William H. Bowen School of Law who created posts on social media that celebrated the murder of Charlie Kirk.

“The recent appalling comments by UA Little Rock William H. Bowen School of Law Professor Felicia Branch speak for themselves. There can be no consideration of someone of such evident low character continuing to instruct future lawyers here in Arkansas. We should and do have broad academic freedom in this country. But protections for scholarship offer no reason for an employer to tolerate an employee unabashedly celebrating political assassination.

“The First Amendment protects your right to say what you want. It does not, however, guarantee you the job you want, regardless of what you say. The law school should terminate her immediately.”
